BED BUG SIGNS & SYMPTOMS

O4E

Indications of the presence of bed bugs can manifest in a few different ways. You could see the actual bug crawling on your bed, couch, walls, floor, etc... The nymphs look like small, lighter colored versions of the adult. The adults are about $\frac{1}{4}$ inch.

You may not see the actual bugs. They tend to feed at night and hide during the day. They feed on blood and your skin may react to the bites. The bites tend to be red welts on the upper portion of the body (from the waistline up). People react differently, some not at all. The bites can appear as a row of bites or one single bite depending on how the bugs fed.

Another sign that bed bugs are around is the bed bug fecal material. Bed bug feces show up as small, black dots or smears wherever the bed bugs rest (on the mattress, box spring, headboard, behind pictures, etc...).
